

Foreword

Welcome to Cedarville University's 2011 Factbook, the 25th edition of this publication!

What you see in the following pages will reflect our commitment to our mission statement: we are a Christ-centered learning community that equips students for leadership and service. Many components are involved in accomplishing this purpose. You will be introduced to several of them as you read through this report. The academic division seeks to encourage the integration of faith, learning, and life, offer quality instruction, and enhance student learning experiences. This book will "tell the story" of how they are doing that on our campus.

Christian ministries and student life are also integral pieces to successful completion of our mission statement. The goal of student life is to equip students for lives marked by academic success, spiritual vitality, physical and mental health, relational accountability, personal integrity, and meaningful service. Christian ministries believes that individual ministry involvement is a vital part of each student's education and spiritual growth.

Additionally, many other components within the University contribute to our mission of equipping our students. Enrollment management and marketing and operations are essential pieces in the growth of our University and the accomplishment of our mission.

I would like to thank all these areas for contributing data that will allow you, the reader, to get an overall picture of how we are doing at Cedarville University. I would specifically like to thank Sandy Yoder, who has taken on this task of administrating and compiling the data for this publication for several years now and graciously agreed to continue it again this year. Thanks also to Fran Campbell, our University registrar and Joshua Wurzelbacher, our graphic designer.

Please contact us as you use this volume and see the need for a new way of presenting the information or identify a new area we can cover. We welcome the opportunity to tell the Cedarville University story more completely!
