Our Mission

Cedarville University is a Christ-centered learning community equipping students for lifelong leadership and service through an education marked by excellence and grounded in biblical truth.

This mission statement has attracted Christian students from around the world to Cedarville's beautiful campus. Since our founding in 1887, we have built a national reputation for rigorous, Christ-centered academic programs. More than two-thirds of our students study in the sciences, health-related majors, or professional programs — a statistic that sets us apart from other private and Christian colleges.

Every academic program is built upon a liberal arts core that includes biblical education, communications, global studies, humanities, physical education, science and mathematics, and the social sciences. Regardless of their career path, our students are prepared to think critically, communicate effectively, and engage their world with the heart and mind of Christ.

Grounded in Biblical Truth

Cedarville is one of only five schools in the Council for Christian Colleges & Universities that provides a Bible minor for every graduate. Always among our students' favorites, Bible classes stretch them to think about God, His Word, and His world in new and life-changing ways.

The Bible minor course sequence:

- Christian Life and Thought
- Spiritual Formation
- Old Testament Literature
- New Testament Literature
- Christian Worldview Development
- Christian Worldview Integration

Faculty Who Inspire Achievement

“ I always knew I loved to teach. Until God brought me to Cedarville, I didn't know how much.

I have the joy of watching students grapple with content, connect what they are learning, and use Scripture to evaluate ideas and theories.

My high expectations challenge and engage — and yes, sometimes stress — students, but they rise to those expectations! I give the support they need to succeed, then watch and celebrate their accomplishments when they finish well.

I love spending time with Cedarville students: they are open, responsive, even idealistic. All I need to do is make myself available, and God brings students to my office to talk, ask questions, seek advice, tell me about their joys and sorrows. I listen to them and pray with them.

I treasure my lasting friendships with former students: we visit, share our lives, suggest good books to one another, encourage and challenge one another. ”

*Deborah (Bush) Haffey, Ph.D.
Professor of Communication Arts
Serving at Cedarville since 1986*

“ I love the small classes, the friends I’ve made, and the faculty’s genuine concern for their students’ spiritual and academic well-being. Cedarville has challenged me to raise the bar for myself academically, spiritually, relationally, and personally. ”

“ Cedarville prepared me to be honest and energetic in my academic work, a factor that set me apart in my research internships. Volunteer activities and caring professors here at Cedarville taught me to be compassionate, a model of Christ, toward those around me — a lesson I have already been able to apply in clinical settings. The greatest life lesson I will take from Cedarville into medical school is maintaining humility and integrity, keeping God my highest priority. ”

We are grateful for our partners who support Cedarville in a variety of ways:

Gift Planning and Endowment

A long-term investment providing the foundation for the Cedarville experience

Once invested, the gift earns interest used either as income for the donors during their lifetime or as a scholarship for students. Bequests are ideal for donors without immediate access to their assets who desire to plan their charitable intentions for the future.

Cedarville Fund

Programs: An annual investment in the distinctive programs that make up the Cedarville experience

Support academics, chapel, Christian ministries, student life ... everything it takes to operate day to day, year to year.

Scholarships: An annual investment to keep the Cedarville experience accessible

These funds are awarded by financial aid for qualified students with additional financial need.

Donor-Funded Scholarships

A personal investment in an individual student's Cedarville experience

Donors can name their scholarship and choose to benefit students in a specific major, life circumstance, ethnicity, hometown, etc. Named scholarships can be endowed or annually funded.

Academics

A timely investment in the heart of Cedarville's mission

A Cedarville education is marked by excellence and grounded in biblical truth. Supporting a specific academic area advances opportunities for students and faculty in their field.

Capital Campaigns

A practical investment in the unique environment where the Cedarville experience takes place

Thanks to the generosity of many individuals, Cedarville is blessed to have quality facilities that match the excellence of our programs.

Yellow Jacket Athletics

An athletic investment in students who represent Christ on the field and on the court

Yellow Jacket Club members may designate gifts for equipment, special projects, and financial aid for academically qualified athletes and athletic training students.

Missions Involvement Services

A life-changing investment that allows students to explore short-term missions

These experiences deepen students' perspectives about their world when they experience global missions firsthand.
